

After your Botox Treatment

Botox

- You may have bruising, swelling, mild discomfort, and/or a headache following the treatment. You may use an ice pack on the treated area and take Tylenol for the discomfort.
- Do not massage the treated area as this may diffuse the Botox into surrounding muscles, causing unwanted effects.
- Call our office (206.505.1300) if you have any rashes or persistent abnormal swelling lasting 3 or more days.
- Botox typically takes effect 3 to 7 days following treatment. Its effectiveness increases during the first week and lasts approximately 3 to 6 months.
- Some patients have a heavy sensation in their forehead during the first week. This is normal and temporary.
